Weather not cooperating for final striping

Attention Airport Users:

Today's planned final striping has been cancelled due to high winds.

Based on weather forecasts, the scheduled re-striping is moving to tomorrow (Wednesday) morning. They will also start earlier to try and stay ahead of likely windy conditions set for tomorrow. If the work goes smoothly, the contractor should be complete within a couple of hours of when they start.

NOTAMs are up now showing tomorrow's planned runway closure and work window from 7 - 11 A.M. When the work is complete, the NOTAMs will be cancelled, and normal runway operations will resume.
